

RIGHT TO FIGHT

A wonderful and unparalleled contribution to our political economy and excellent insights into the world of labour. A must read for any serious activist and enlightened employer. — Zwelinzima Vavi, Cosatu general secretary

An essential Friday read. Terry Bell keeps us on our toes. — Nadine Gordimer, Nobel laureate

A balanced view on trade union affairs and the labour market, presented without fear, favour or prejudice. — Chez Milani former Fedusa general secretary

At once immensely readable, informative and timely. — Manene Samela, Nactu general secretary

A working class view which is not diluted by day to day political imperatives and certainly confirms that a "better world is possible". — Khulile Nkhushubana, general secretary, Consawu

Always educative and mind provoking...most Nactu leaders keep Inside Labour clippings in their offices. — Joseph Maqhekeni, Nactu president

Fearless and abrasive and doesn't care two-hoots for the accolades of those in power. Bell has an army of devoted readers... Some might not like him but all want to know what he is saying. — Ronnie Kasrils, former cabinet minister

Offers the sort of insight and reflection that is often uncomfortable in its truth but unavoidable in its resonance. — Liepollo Lebohang Pheko, Executive Director - The Trade Collective

An organiser, teacher and voice of worker consciousness. — Castro Ngobesi, Numsa spokesperson

One of the strongest and most important voices we have...a must-read for anyone interested in the modern-day economy. — Siki Mgabadeli, national radio talkshow host
